Two New Partners Join Lawson Lundell LLP

Lawson Lundell LLP is pleased to welcome Jeff Scobie and Crispin Arthur to its growing Calgary office.

Jeff, a lawyer who is highly regarded by clients involved in oil and gas activities, is now a partner in the firm's Commercial Law and Oil and Gas Groups. He brings extensive experience advising domestic and international companies in corporate and commercial matters. Jeff previously spent six years in the Middle East and is a former general counsel of Qatar Petroleum. He advises on domestic and international projects and has experience advising in relation to LNG matters.

Crispin, a leading corporate finance and securities lawyer, has now joined the firm's Business Law, Corporate Finance & Securities Law, Energy Law and Mergers & Acquisitions Groups. His practice includes an emphasis on oil and gas, power, securities and corporate reorganizations.

"We are delighted to welcome two such talented lawyers to the firm," said Clifford Proudfoot, Managing Partner at Lawson Lundell. "We continue to expand our Calgary office and are confident that the experience and skills that Jeff and Crispin offer make them strong additions to our Calgary team. Our clients will benefit from their industry knowledge and experience as well as the pragmatic approach that they each take in devising legal solutions that consider their clients' business realities."

Prior to joining Lawson Lundell, Jeff and Crispin each practised at national and international firms.
